NEW OFFCICERS ARE ELECTED

For the Enving Year-Hon. J. Marshall Magana Re-elected President of the Boolety-Mr. C. W. Brockunier, of this City, the New Vice-President-The For Henry Memorial Tablet to be Started. Last Night's Banquet.

The second annual meeting of the West Virginia branch of the Society of the Sons of the Revolution was held in Wheeling yesterday. The attendance of delegates from the interior of the state was quite large, and in addition there were present a number of gentlemen who were elected to membership in the organisation yesterday

The business meeting of the society was held resterday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Fort Henry Club. Presi-dent J. Marshall Hagans, of Morgantown, occupied the chair. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year, all being re-elections with the exception of Vice President Brockunier, who succeeds Dr. John Dalley:

President—J. Marshall Hagans, of Morganium.

Morgantown, Vice President—C. W. Brockunier, of Wheeling.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS

Open Their New Hall on the South Side

Deen Their New Hall on the South Side with a Banquet.

Last night the several lodges of the Knights of Pythias of Wheeling, gave a ball and banquet at their new castle at the corner of Chapline and Twenty-seventh streets. South Side. The affair was under the auspices of Couer de Leon division. Uniform Rank, but all the lodges united in assiting. The new building, which is indeed a credit to the order, was claborately decorated especially for the occasion. The banquet and hall occurred at the same time and lasted throughout the evening. A large number of distinguished members of the Knights of Pythias from throughout the state were present, also several from neighboring states. The following committee was in charge of the affair; Messra H. C.

Medick, George A. Weisner, R. E. Shaf-fer, Charles W. Hartman and F. C. Weisgerber. The music was by Meister's full orchestra. A program wenty-four dances was danced

THE AUTHOR OF "DIXIE."

An Old Time Minstrel, who is Still in the Harness at the Age of Eighty-one—A Talk with "Dan" Emmitt, the Writer and Composer of a Famous Song.

Look away, look away,
Away down south in Dixle.
Few people, in fact is ddubtful if any in this city, who have sung and any in this city, who have sung and whistled "Dixie" are aware that the author of that song and the composer of the air is till alive, and that al-though the air became the south during the war what the inspiration of the Marseilles was to the French during the bloody revolution of '93 the author was not only a northern man but a strong Unionist. That man, Mr. "Dan" D. Emmett, of Mt. Vernon, Ohlo, strong Unionist. That man, Mr.

"Dan" D. Emmett, of Mt. Vernon, Ohlo, was in the city yesterday as a member of Al G. Field's minstrels, and although in his eighty-first year, he marched in the procession of the company yesterday through the principal streets, keeping pace with the lively steps of his younger associates. Mr.
Emmett is not only the oldest minstrel in the country in regard to age, but in point of service as well, and is the originator of the present style of popular minstrelsy. A reporter found Mr.
Emmett yesterday afternoon in the private car in which the Field's troupe is touring their circuit, and had a pleasant chat with him. His history is quite interesting, especially his account of the writing of "Dixie."

Mr. Emmett was born of southern parentage, his father being a Virginian, and his mother a Marylander, but he himself was born in the town of Mt.
Vernon, Knox county, Ohio, on the 28th of, October, ISIE. Consequently he is now in his eighty-first year and a hale and hearty looking man, for one of his age, and bids fair with proper care to outlive many of the present generation. Mr. Emmett's father, was a village blacksmith, and he kept young "Dan" at school until he was about fourteen years old, when he graduated with high honors in reading, writing and arithmetic as far as the single rule of three. And this was considered sufficient to carry a man through the world. English grammar, tial branches. It was the fashlon those days for the teacher to give the scholars lessons to take home over night and commit them to memory in the morning.

"Dan's 'father's family increasing he was compelled to take him from school and pit him to work in the shop to assist in the support of the family. Dan's time being completely occupied he had no time to devote to his lessons, consequently he would get punished in school for his neglect, and then receive another punishment at home for getting licked in school; and, betwixt the constant application of birch sprout and hickory oil he grew to the dimensions of an ordinary sized man. During "Dan's" minority he studied musicand became quite proficient on the violin. Once upon a time it happened that a theatrical manager came to Mt. Vernon minus a musician, and upon inquiry was recommended to "Dan's" father as having a boy that would any swer his purpose. Accordingly the manager called on "Dan's" father and upon making his business known his father repiled, "that's the boy there pulling the bellows. Speak to him yourself and see what he says about it."

Says the manager, "Well, my boy, how would you like to play the violin."

it."
Says the manager, "Well, my boy, how would you like to play the violin for me at the hotel over here for a theatrical company?
"Dan" studied a moment and replied, "I do not think I will answer the purpose: I do not think I can play good enough."

Says the manager, "Oh. yes you can my lad. I only want you to fill up the vacuum between the pieces."

Now this word vacuum had never been heard in that part of the country, and says. "Dan," "I guess you will have to get somebody else to ill up your vacuum, as I have had enough work here pulling this old bellows, and you had better look for some other you had better look for some other preson to fill it up for you."

"Dan" supposed it meant some kind of manual labor, such as wheeling dirt or chipping cord wood. This loke was too good to keep, and it got noised about the town, and "Dan's" companious annoyed him by hallowing after him "hey, Dan, have you got that vacuum filed yet? I suppose you will treat us all to a barrel of cider when you get your money for the fob." And this sannoyance stuck to him until he left home for good, when at the age of savenicen with the consent of his parents he Joined a circus company, and traveled for several years with the same, both as musician and performer. In the spring of 1855 he found himself engaged with the Bryant's ministrels, of No. 472 Broadway, New York. His particular engagement was to compose, negro and comic songs, and act as musician when required. One Saturday, night ofter performance Mr. Bryant overtook him on his way home, and requested him to make a new plantation negro song, one with a catchy chorus, and a lively air, and one that the boys could essally learn to whistle and sing through the streets.

Next day being Sunday, and a very stormy one at that, he was compelled to remain within doors, when he composed "Dixle," both words and music as it is now sung verbatim by both the, northern and southern sections of this union. When the Confederates adopted it may the enter or other place of amusement north of Mason and Dixon's line, during our late unpleasantness. As will be seen by the date mentioned above this ever popularisong was composed and sang north at least eighteen months before it was ever heard in the south. "Its a well-known fact that Mr. Emmett so scial Dispatch to the Intelligence

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., April 6.— From present indications but one name will be presented before the Fourth congressional district delegate convention at Huntington, April 22, from the upper end of the district, and it will be that of Hon. Charles Brooks Smith, the that of Hon. Charles Brooks Smith, the ex-congressman. Mr. G. B. Gibbens, who was a candidate for delegate, has withdrawn, realising that his candidacy might interfere with his candidacy for aheriff in this county. This leaves the field open in the ex-congressman's favor and his nomination will probably be without coposition and by acclamation. His name will be presented to the convention by Hon. Charles T. Caldwell, the glited crator, and Wood county will send a solid delegation for him. Mr. Smith is an out and out McKinley man from first to last.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 6.—A special to the Journal from Talbotton, Ga., says: Miss Sallie Emmat Owen, a heautiful, and wealthy young lady of this city, was hot and instantly killed in the parlor of J. H. McCoy's residence by Dr. W. L. Ryder, a prominent dentist.

Hon. A. P. Parsons, a prominent candidate for Congress, was standing beside Miss Owen when the fatal shot was fired. He was also shot at, but received but a flesh wound.

Dr. Ryder was a lover of Miss Owen and it is presumed that she refused to marry him and that he was frenzed with jealousy at the existing friendship between Mr. Parsons and the young lady.
